

Wendy Stuart

I am an actress, comedienne and model, but I always felt deep down in my past life, I was a famous explorer because I have spent this life recreating that quest for adventure. I am known for my quirky sensibility, and off beat interpretation of characters that have gotten me cast in film, TV, and theatre. Whether playing an expert on wacky weddings on Geraldo, hosting fashion segments for Spiegel Home Shopping, or sporting a fabulous tiara as Mrs. NY, I definitely bring signature flair to everything I do.

The combination of studying anthropology and theatre initiated a dramatic life change, leading me to a village in Nigeria to study voodoo. The locals called me "Oyebo", which means the white skin around a peeled orange. My passion for the unusual has also brought me to the Amazon where my adventures included interviewing a tapir, eating reeds with the Amayra Indians in Lake Titicaca in Peru, and hanging with the Kuna Indians in the San Blas Islands.

Although I am a NYC girl (why don't they have street lights in the country?), I am passionate for decorating country style. I accent my creations with country antiques from all over the world and my work has been featured in national magazines.

As a well-known Fit Model or clothing technician, I work with major clothing labels. My client base is as eclectic as my career. They include Eileen Fisher, Sag Harbor, Champion Activewear, as well as intimate apparel and swimwear companies. Incorporating my keen sense of style, and knowledge of fabrics, I take pride in the garments I create ensuring a fantastic fit because I want people to feel as fabulous as I do wearing them.

In addition to humans, I have a small petting zoo in my apartment that includes a Cockatoo, a Chihuahua and, two English Angora rabbits. They are all loose, by the way, because I don't believe in cages for animals or for humans. My philosophy about life is as follows- "less may be more, but more is always better, and the glass can't be full enough". I live my life this way...
